INTRODUCTION

Every corner of Louisiana has a story—many everyone knows, and even more known only to a few. 64 Parishes, the award-winning quarterly magazine of the Louisiana Endowment for the Humanities, wants to tell them all.

With relationships spanning 30 years, beginning during the magazine's earlier iteration as Louisiana Cultural Vistas, we are able to work with creators from Louisiana and beyond to develop content that reflects the true diversity of our state, one of the great cultural crossroads of the Americas. We interpret the humanities broadly, covering history and culture as well as foodways, music, literature, and all the myriad ways Louisianans express themselves.

By marrying the in-depth, trustworthy examinations of investigative outlets with the general audience appeal of a commercial magazine, 64 Parishes has become the go-to source for discerning readers hungry for the best Louisiana writing available today, in a format impossible to put down.

In recent issues our pages took readers on gumbo-fueled road trips, searched for traces of a WWII-era Japanese American internment camp, and looked for Louis Armstrong's winning smile in an early newsreel. They have hosted writers like Poppy Tooker, Maurice Carlos Ruffin, Richard Campanella, James Karst, and Ladee Hubbard, with Jessica B. Harris and Michael Tisserand slated for upcoming issues. Photography by Brian Pavlich, Paul Kieu, Abdul Aziz, Zack Smith, Akasha Rabut, and Eric Waters illustrate the stories we tell; artworks by Brandon Ballengée and Denise Gallagher grace our covers.

Join us to be part of the best magazine all about Louisiana.

WHY PRINT?

High-quality, low-frequency print magazines like 64 Parishes continue to shine as an example of successful print publishing, finding a niche audience perfectly matched for the content. Print gives audiences an opportunity to take their time, relax, and enjoy that most human of experiences: settling in for a good story.

FROM OUR PARTNERS AND CONTRIBUTORS

“As many local and regional publishers in Louisiana have shrunk through mergers, layoffs, cuts and consolidations, long form, deeply researched articles about Louisiana’s unique culture have become harder and harder to find. 64 Parishes is one of very few places left where one can turn for the kind of thoughtful writing that you want to spend a Sunday afternoon with.”

—CHRIS JAY SHREVEPORT-BASED WRITER

“As founder and president of a new historical society in Iberia Parish, I truly appreciate the importance of 64 Parishes. Through this publication we can share our research findings across Louisiana, and we can keep up with significant cultural and historical events in other parishes. Thanks to great writing and beautiful photography, they have managed to produce a professional publication that all Louisianans can claim with pride.”

—PHEBE HAYES IBERIA AFRICAN-AMERICAN HISTORICAL SOCIETY

“Partnering with 64 Parishes has provided a wonderful outlet for our arts council to spread the word about the multitude of cultural opportunities found in northeast Louisiana. Whether it’s an artistic discipline or a historical story, northeast Louisiana has much to offer. Being able to share pieces of our story through 64 Parishes’ readership is invaluable.”

—BARRY STEVENS NORTHEAST LOUISIANA ARTS COUNCIL

FROM OUR READERS

“As the editor of the Louisiana Official Visitors Guide, I have a ton of respect for how 64 Parishes covers the state. Y’all are doing phenomenal work.”

“You make the state of LA look good!”

“As an immigrant to Louisiana, Cultural Vistas and now 64 Parishes has been my favorite magazine for the last 20 years. Every issue teaches me something I didn’t know about my adopted state. I love it all... Keep up the good work!”

“Created by the Louisiana Endowment for the Humanities, 64 Parishes is the home of fascinating stories, announcements for programs and events, and more. Prepare to have your mind blown—ours was!”
